Revised Constution Proposed

Brigham Young Universe

Vol [illegible] No [illegible] [illegible] 1956 [illegible]

Three-Branch Government Plan Outlined

A BILL OUTLINING a new studentbody constitution was submitted to the Senate Wednesday night by Nancy Briggs, Constitution Committee chairman.

Wednesday's presentation was considered the first reading of the bill. Under new Senate procedure approved Wednesday night each bill must be read three times, the first for introduction, second for debate, and third for vote.

THE PROPOSED constitution would establish a studentbody government patterned after the United States Government with independent legislative, executive and judicial branches. A system of inter-branch checks and balances would be included.

The Senate would be revised to include five Senators from each class including graduate class, all elected specifically as Senators. This would eliminate the present practice of class officers serving also as Senators.

Senators would serve one year with the exception of those elected as junior Senators. Those would serve during both their junior and senior years to assure experienced Senators in the Senate at all times.

The Senate president would be elected to that capacity by the studentbody from candidates nominated by the Senate. The president would have to have served a year in the Senate but would not be a Senator at the time of his election.

THE EXECUTIVE branch would be revised to bring AMS, AWS and Inter-Organization Council directly under the authority of the Executive Council. The Executive Council would itself be revised to include studentbody president and [illegible] rather than two vice presidents as at present. The [illegible] vice presidents would be the AMS and AWS presidents respectively. [illegible] would be appointive positions.

THE JUDICIAL division would consist of a Supreme Court with original jurisdiction in matters directly affecting the studentbody government and appellate jurisdiction from the [illegible] Court and the Honor Council.

Senate Report Says. . .

Traffic Appeals System Is Problem

ONE OF THE main points of interest in Wednesday's Senate meeting was the report on the traffic situation on the Brigham Young University campus.

The report was submitted after an investigation by the Senate's sub-committee on student-faculty relations, headed by Chairman Mel Close, Associated Men Student president.

CLOSE REPORTED that apparently the real problem lies in the method of appeal of traffic violations. Under the present method of appeal if a student feels the citation is unwarranted his first appeal is to the traffic referee who has the power to dismiss the charge.

The traffic referee is a member of the Security Department which issues the citations.

IF THE CITATION is upheld by the referee the student has the option of paying the fine or appealing his case to the [illegible] Court of Appeals. This court [illegible]

Close said that in many cases the students were made to feel [illegible] and were quite [illegible] emotionally upset after talking to the traffic referee.

DURING FALL quarter [illegible] warning tickets were [illegible]. There were 1073 traffic citations issued, 319 of which were settled without [illegible]. Only nine cases were submitted to the traffic court for judgment, four of which were reversed in favor of the student.

Close said a member of the Traffic Court of Appeals expressed the opinion that [illegible] its present organization that [illegible] could handle all appeal cases.

This would eliminate the need for a traffic referee, he concluded.

THE REPORT IS being forwarded to the Dean of Students for consideration and [illegible] has been appointed [illegible] the supervision of the [illegible] further [illegible] Senate [illegible] present [illegible]

Privileges Revoked For Awhile

by Ralph Barney

In a four-page statement, read at Thursday night's Inter-Organization Council Penal Court session, Jerry Kindred, chief justice, declared the Gold Bricker social unit guilty of four counts of violation of the regulations governing the conduct of social units.

The unit previously had pleaded guilty to three counts: interfering with classes on Feb. 1, failing to schedule a [illegible] ride on Feb. 2, and holding an [illegible] activity after 10 [illegible] on Feb. 2.

A "NOT GUILTY" plea was entered on the fourth count of staging a public display in poor taste on Jan. 31. [illegible] Brickers felt it was not in [illegible] taste.

Sentence pronounced by the court was the loss of all [illegible] privileges until [illegible] Quarter 1957 (which was [illegible]) and denial of [illegible] whether on campus or off including Song Fest [illegible] and [illegible] beginning of Autumn Quarter 1956 except that they will be allowed to hold [illegible] business meeting of not more than one and a half hours [illegible] activities [illegible]

Brother Thinks Ike Will Run

CHICAGO (AP) Earl Eisenhower, brother of the president, says he believes the President will seek a second term.

The youngest of the Eisenhower brothers, who lives and works in suburban La Grange as a public relations director for the weekly Suburban Life newspapers, said: "It's only my personal opinion but it looks to me as if Dwight will seek a second term."

No Settlement Seen for Plant

PROVO (AP)—The giant Geneva works, heart of U.S. Steel Corp.'s western steelmaking operations, stood idle Thursday as a labor dispute entered its fourth day with no promise of an early settlement.

Though no pickets are posted at the plant, company officials call the stoppage a strike—a term rejected by officials of United Steel Workers local 2701, which represents the bulk of Geneva's employees. Union spokesmen say their members are willing to work but the company won't let them.

Death Toll Hits 304

LONDON (AP) Grieving, frozen Europe counted at least 304 dead Thursday in the worst winter in living memory. Even colder weather was forecast for the weekend. Blizzards spread huge snow drifts across England, isolating scores of villages in Kent, Essex and Suffolk counties. Only one road was open to the resort towns of Ramsgate, Broadstairs and Margate and the U.S. Air Force bases around them. British roads were littered with birds dead of cold and starvation.

Waves and Shouts.

Dear Editor,

Last Friday night five patients from the Utah State Hospital accompanied by some Brigham Young University student nurses were flatly refused admittance to the Vienna Boys' Choir Concert by a certain dean who threw his arms in the air and shouted, "They can't come in! They can't come in!"

Although it was an embarrassing situation for the nurses, we were mainly concerned over the harmful effect that it may have had upon these patients by making them feel that they were hostily rejected, perhaps they could not accept this as well as a more normal person could

We would have appreciated an explanation as to the reason for refusal to the concert, had it been in a more quiet, controlled manner with some consideration for these patients

We had the understanding that these patients are to be accepted at BYU activities and that we had permission cleared through both the hospital and the University to attend this activity.

We resent the fact that these patients were spoken of in a manner which inferred that they lack intelligence It is true that mental illness is as much a disease as physical illness and should be treated more understandingly, and maybe the general public does not realize this

'Our University'...

Dear Editor:

I was greatly heartened by your letter of welcome to your wonderful campus I was quite impressed by the stature of our University. It is growing and I hope my football teams can grow along with it. That is my aim I know it can be accomplished with faith and hard work

I have always respected the student newspapers on the campuses where I have been associated for after all they are the voice of the studentbody.

I wish to extend to you a welcome to attend spring practices and I will, without a doubt, be seeing you in person soon

Again, may I say thanks for the welcome, and your excellent coverage in the Universe on my appointment and Coach Stevens'.

Overlooked...

Dear Editor

In reference to your editorial "Think It Over Vet", Feb 22, I object most emphatically to your insinuation that the move to raise veterans' allowances is a "commercialized money-making scheme" I therefore request this opportunity to point out the most important facts which you have overlooked

No 1 While we were in the service during World War II some of this nation's largest corporations accumulated a large share of their present wealth. Many civilian workers became fairly wealthy On the other hand, many of us were underpaid, receiving about 50 bucks per month from Uncle Sam

I became disabled during the Korean War and as a reward for this second daily risking of life, I am entitled to $18 per month

No 2 It was through the pressure of veterans organizations upon Congress that educational benefits were appropriated in the first place Recently Congress raised the pay and subsistance for themselves, the military service and civil service in correspondence to the increase in the cost of living

No 3 When a person commences to let religious instructions interfere too much with free democratic processes, he tends to become fanatical

I strongly urge veterans to stand together for the good of all

J. C. Mathes

(Ed Note All who?)

Answering Blast...

Dear Editor,

In answer to the blast Mr Frost had in the Universe of Feb 22, may I state a few facts

The vet problem is not new It started years ago with other wars and will continue to be a problem for a few more years if, God willing, we have no more wars The present plan will run out in a few years and then, sir, when you are in business for yourself, you won't have to worry about putting veterans through school with your tax money

Just a bit more, sir, Are you married? Was it the fault of the married vets that the war came? Do you begrudge them the extra $15 or $20 a month that may help them? I think not, you must have some intelligence or you wouldn't be here at Brigham Young University, which by the way brings up the final point. why are you here? Is it because most of your tuition is paid by the members of the Church? If you want to be self-supporting, try it at another school where it isn't quite so easy

Maybe in a way this can answer also the brave man that wrote "Think It Over, Vet." Why didn't you sign it?

Joe Rile

Flag Handling...

Dear Editor,

Now that we've got that dead horse called "booing' THOROUGHLY drowned, let's try something new Say like the way the flag ceremony is handled before our games

It seems to me that here is a new line our improving minds might work on

I personally have about three main complaints along this line They are first, the way the uncased flag is marched up and down the side before the ceremony What do you say we case it and do not take the case off until the flag is announced?

Second, forgive me if I'm wrong, but it seems to me that our announcers rather ignore the flag, then suddenly come out with, "Ladies and Gentlemen, Our National Anthem" Please guys, let's announce the flag of the United States

And last, but not least, don't cheer the players after the flag has come onto the floor Let's be quiet, and respect the emblem of the country we love. Would it be childish for everyone to place his hand over his heart and keep his mouth shut To me, it is sort of an opening prayer, saying, 'We are thankful we can live where games like this are possible"

I noticed the referees placed their hands over their hearts last game I thought it looked good, if you did, follow their example

Burnell Sorenson

(Ed Note Hear, Hear!!)

Jam, Too...

Dear Editor

Thank you for writing the article, "Think It Over, Vet" I'm glad someone had enough sense to warn the vets just what they are jumping into It seems they are so anxious to get the extra money they don't bother to think of how or why or where the money will come from I feel they could get along without the pay increases

In the first place, there are many of us who have not yet served who manage to go through school without free handouts from the government With a little initiative, one can work for one of the many scholarships and aids made available to college students With a little more initiative one can find part-time jobs to help pay for schooling

In the second place, there are colleges in every state that provide a well-rounded education, with very low-if-any tuition fees If a person wanted an education, he would be glad to go to a state university

Now don't get me wrong I think our vets certainly deserve something extra for fighting for us, and protecting the nation But, when they ask for jam to go with the bread and butter, I think they have gone too far.

From The Tower

The Senate Prestige Committee shouldn't have much to worry about if the Senate matches its Constitution Committee in initiative and efficiency

The proposals are patterned as far as feasible after the Federal constitution, with a clear division of powers between legislative, executive and judicial branches No studentbody government officer would hold positions in more than one branch (or more than one position in the same branch).

That, at Brigham Young University, is a revolutionary move and a needed one.

Constitutions of all kinds drawn up here in the past seem to have clung to the idea that liasion, public relations, and cooperation, required interlocking and overlapping of governmental bodies. As a result government has grown "soft" and somewhat ineffective.

The constitution would still provide for liasion, but it would be in the form of checks and balances. The executive branch would have veto power over the legislature but depend on the legislature for laws under which the executives could operate

However, one point in the proposals seems likely to provoke some controversy It may, if adopted, run into head-on conflict with the long-range plan of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints education program to build a network of junior colleges with BYU as the kingpin, largely an upper-division institution.

That provision would have junior Senators elected (during the spring of their sophomore year) to serve two terms No Senators would then be elected by the seniors

This would prevent transfers from junior colleges from seeking Senate position (or even voting for Senators) until their graduate year or unless a vacanc occurred in their class Sen ate's representation.

The purpose of this appa discrimination against tran students and seniors in gen is to include some experien Senators at all times That good idea But perhaps one S ator from each class could elected on a two-year basis.

The prestige committe might take a second look a another action in Wednes day's Senate meeting, whic could have an effect oppos ite that of the Constitutio Committee. The sub-com mittee investigating traffi problems turned its wor over to a committee fro outside the Senate (thoug still under Senate direction) This could cause some t wonder about the Senate' interest in the problems agrees to investigate.

Date 'Fun' Solon Says

SEEN AT THE presentation of Rigoletto Wednesday evening were Cosmo Cougar, the Brigham Young University mascot and his date Diane Hatch of Idaho Falls Ida Much to the amusement of the opera goers, the cougar appeared in a charming suit of tails, plus a tophat Tom Reeves, Studentbody Pep Director, acted as interpreter for Miss Hatch and Cosmo, as the cougar only used sign language

At the opera, curious students could not decide whether Cosmo was enjoying the performance or enjoying holding Miss Hatch's hand

MISS HATCH SAID, 'The date was loads of fun, even if conversation did lag at times Cosmo has a wonderful personality"

He called for her at the Senate meeting in the basement of the Student Service Center where he presented her with a lovely flower and amused the Senators with his antics Miss Hatch is a Freshman Class Senator

COSMO COUGAR will be revealed at the BYU-Montana game on Saturday evening His identity has been kept a complete secret and nothing is known about him except that he is a junior at BYU Because Miss Hatch mentioned that he held up three fingers when she asked what class he was in Reeves immediately reminded the Cougar of his secret nature

Cooperation Asked In Game Parking

Provo Police Department has requested that students and faculty members of Brigham Young University cooperate with them in following a parking plan in the Smith Fieldhouse area during this weekend's basketball games

Drivers will be required to enter the main parking lot near the fieldhouse at 12th North The intersection of 150 East at [illegible] North will be blocked to motorists

Cars parked in the main lot may exit by way of 150 East, or may travel west to University Ave, or North to 12th North

Parking areas on campus above the fieldhouse are open and are almost as close to the fieldhouse as the main parking lot, police pointed out Persons using these areas are asked to obey University regulations and not park in prohibited zones
